Working with Giocondo was not easy, the days were tough and intense. He was a typical, "cursed" calabrese (Calabrian man). I will never stop calling him damn "calabrese". During that year my back pain got worse day by day. Gil, as always, came to my rescue. By chance or fortunately, the doctor found something unique and ingenious on Mount Sila, a kind of healing mud, which he skillfully heated in a container with burning charcoal. It helped tremendously with my pain. Combined with the experiences he gained during a trip to London, he created a masterpiece: Torbato Italiano. With the peat, and the rustic production method, he had managed to distil a "peated" gin that was unique in the world... It was just a pity that he couldn't produce enough of it. Gil Italian Peated. If our doctor had not searched so scrupulously, we would never have discovered the peat and the richness of our land, which today has found its natural habitat in the particular context of the Sila. We have combined the juniper from Rocca Imperia
