Comments

The Mediterranean climate of Campania with the influence of the nearby sea, the protective mountains as well as soils of volcanic origin offer an ideal basis for viticulture. The white variety Falanghina in particular produces full-bodied, mineral and aromatic white wines, especially in Avellino. DOC wines account for only three percent of total wine production, but the quality efforts of recent years are beginning to bear fruit.

Pairing

Ideal with risotto such as pasta as well as soups, fish dishes, cold dishes, buffalo mozzarella and young cheese.

Tasting notes

Intense bouquet with hints of apple and pineapple with a mineral, herbal note.
Harmoniously structured, warm and full-bodied, delicate with toasty notes in the taste.
