Comments

Ried. Altenberg in Göttlesbrunn. Soil. Danube gravel with loess in the subsoil. Climate. is one of the cooler gravel hills with influences from the nearby forest and east orientation. The Weissburgunder loves the warm Pannonian climate with its warm late summers and autumns. In combination with the Altenberg site, the grapes reach their maximum ripeness here, yet retain a pleasant acidity and freshness and a distinct aroma.

Pairing

Vegetable and meat dishes with exotic spices, Asian dishes (wok), casseroles and pies, cheese. glass culture. Chianti or Burgundy glass.

Tasting notes

Brilliant straw yellow with green reflections, exotic fruit rich in finesse, hints of nutty bread, some honey, elegant and creamy palate, salty herbal spices on the finish, wonderfully long finish.
